Our club requires coach education seminars to give our inexperienced coaches advice on how to run their training sessions. Do you offer this type of educational service?

Yes, we deliver coach education courses for junior cricket clubs. If you would like us to organise a seminar including practical and theoretical components, please contact us.

How do you structure your cricket coaching lessons for individuals and groups?

Firstly, our coaches will commence the training session with a dialogue. Coaches communicate their lesson plan with the player and our coaches will seek feedback from players regarding specific objectives or desires they wish to have satisfied during the lesson. From here, our coaches will implement a range of cricket coaching drills, activities and strategies. Every 10-15 minutes, the coach will implement a new or different coaching technique. Our lesson plan can focus entirely on batting, bowling or fielding or it can be a combination of batting, bowling and fielding. Coaches will give players the choice of combinations so the preferences of players can be addressed. During the lesson, coaches will make use of video recording devices to provide instant feedback to players regarding performance and execution of specific skills. If you do not wish for this form of coaching, please advise our coaches that you do not wish to have video recording devices used. After the coaching lesson, coaches will share video evidence of player performance with the player/parent via email/text message. At the conclusion of the lesson, the coach and player will evaluate the effectiveness of the lesson. The coach will provide "homework" where appropriate.

How do you structure your cricket coaching lessons for club teams and/or school teams?

Our cricket coaching lessons for club team and/or school teams is similar to the structure of lessons delivered for individual and group cricket coaching lessons. Please see the answer to the previous question for more clarity. Or, contact us by calling or texting 0408 495 766 or emailing luke@supersportscamps.com.au.
